

Keep Loudoun Beautiful

By: Katie Howard

I think that it is important to keep Loudoun beautiful because I want animals to be safe, I do not want people getting sick from pollution, and I want our county to be our home to enjoy. Loudoun County is facing pollution and all we have to do to help it is to do little things like pick up trash. If everyone tries to pick up litter or stop people from cutting down trees we could get very far. Loudoun County can still stay beautiful.

We might be terrorizing animals' homes. Cutting down trees and polluting is causing problems in nature. Plants are being killed from poison in their soil. The trash might be eaten by animals like deer, fox, and rabbits. If you pick up trash you could be saving a creature in Loudoun County. Save nature in Loudoun County.

The air pollution can cause sickness for plants, animals and even people. Factories can cause smoke that is very harmful. If we could have less of that, we could save lots of plants, animals, and people.

What if different things around your home are causing pollution? We won't know unless we try to pay attention to nature. Families should team up to pick up trash, clean up beaches and other things to keep our town clean. It is our home and we should take care of it.

A way I can keep Loudoun beautiful is to recycle and pick up little bits of litter I find and to put them in a trash can. Also, carpooling could help too. The less exhaust on the Earth the better. I could also make compost. First, I would get a bunch of scraps of food including apple cores, banana peels, and orange peels. Then put them all into a big bin, then put the bin in your backyard. Toss the food inside the bin about once a day. In about two weeks you will have fresh soil. Little things make a big difference. Help keep Loudoun County beautiful.
